Conference Highlights

Pre-Conference Symposium

On Wednesday, November 3, 2004 from 7-9 pm, NASSS will host "Human Rights in the North American Borderlands: A Symposium." In this symposium a panel of local Tucson activists and academics will discuss immigrant, indigenous, and civil rights, environmental justice, and labor and anti-racist organizing in the context of local and global border militarization and "free" trade. Speakers will include Guadalupe Castillo, Pima Community College; Raquel Rubio-Goldsmith, University of Arizona; Jennifer Allen, Border Action Network. Pat António Goldsmith, the University Wisconsin, Parkside will preside.

Thursday Special Session

Graduate Workshop - Negotiating the Publication Terrain

Alissa Overend and Emma Wensing, NASSS Graduate Student Executive Board Members, have organized a special Thursday session, designed for but not restricted to graduate students that will focus on the publication process. The session will include three panelists in a round table format: Annelies Knoppers, the newly appointed editor of the Sociology of Sport Journal; Peter Donnelly, the editor of the International Review of the Sociology of Sport; and Audrey Giles, an all-but-defended Ph.D. student. Each presenter will speak for about 10-15 minutes, leaving ample time for a question and answer period.

Friday Keynote Address

The Decolonial Queer Body

Emma Pérez is an historian, a creative writer and a feminist critic. Her publications include: Gulf Dreams, Third Woman Press, 1996 and The Decolonial Imaginary: Writing Chicanas into History, Indiana University Press, 1999. She taught in the Department of History at the University of Texas, El Paso for over ten years. She recently joined the Department of Ethnic Studies at the University of Colorado, Boulder as an Associate Professor. Postcolonial critic Homi Bhabha notes that Pérez "has a distinctive and beautiful voice. Her work is written across national/cultural/sexual borders that are difficult to cross." She's recently completed an historical novel titled, Forgetting the Alamo, Or, Blood Memory. Her Friday keynote will feature a journey that summarizes the contributions of a few decolonial queer scholars who theorize the decolonial queer body.

Take a Student to Lunch on Friday

As in the past, Friday will offer the annual "Take A Student to Lunch" opportunity where faculty treat graduate students to lunch.

Friday Silver Anniversary Celebration

The 25th Anniversary of the NASSS Conference

NASSS Dialogues: A Discussion of the Future

Our November meeting in Tucson will mark the 25th annual conference of NASSS. In recognition of this important milestone, all NASSS members are invited to participate in a Friday discussion of the future direction of NASSS at a special session in Tucson. Stephan R. Walk, California State University, Fullerton will preside. The session will feature issues that concern NASSS members and direct a particular focus on the following issues:

Membership, retention and outreach efforts, including promotion of diversity, recruitment of graduate students, and the conference climate.

Communication among the NASSS membership about organizational matters.

Conference structure and content, including interdisciplinarity, accessibility and rigor.

Administrative structure of NASSS, including terms of office and role delineation.

Friday Silver Anniversary Celebration

Honoring the Presidents of the North American Society for the Sociology of Sport
In honor of their service to the organization, the Presidents of NASSS will be recognized at the Friday business meeting and will serve as our guests of honor at the Friday evening reception. Memorabilia from the NASSS archives will be on display throughout the conference.

Saturday Keynote Panel

Interdisciplinary Dialogues: (Post)Identity and Sport

Ben Carrington, University of Texas; Richard Gruneau, Simon Fraser University; Othello Harris, Miami University; Margaret MacNeill, University of Toronto

Each panelist was asked to respond to the following prompt: The past twenty-five years and beyond have witnessed various responses to "identity" and inequality both within and outside the realm of sport. These range from identity-based social movements (i.e. women's movements, indigenous rights movements) designed to challenge inequality to nonidentarian critiques that posit identity as the very mode enabling the reproduction of inequality. Moreover, debates about the usefulness of identity as a basis for scholarly analysis and political action have led many scholars to revise fundamental assumptions about the nature of subjectivity, agency, and the intersection of axes of difference. Where do you position your work among these various responses? What theorists or theoretical movements have been influential in your thinking? What insights does your position offer for scholars of sport and the future direction of the field?

Saturday Spotlight Session

Spotlight Session: Interdisciplinary Dialogues: Thinking Through Race, Nation and Sport

This panel features young scholars whose work engages the latest thinking in critical race theory and who have not previously attended NASSS:

Kathleen S. Yep, Claremont Colleges; Brett St. Louis, University of California, San Diego; Gregory S. Rodriguez, University of Arizona

On this occasion of the silver anniversary of NASSS, this year's theme of “Interdisciplinary Dialogues” recognizes the diverse theoretical and methodological movements that scholars have enacted over the past twenty-five years to study sport both within and beyond the boundaries of sociology. “Interdisciplinary Dialogues” also suggests the necessity of continuing conversations among and between sport scholars and those working within other disciplines and interdisciplinary “fields.”
